

PAEDIATRIC HEALTH

SYNOPSIS

This specialisation equips non-medical candidates with research and practical skills in child growth and development. Participants will conduct research on issues such as children's growth and developmental concerns, genetic and environmental influences, and community-level early interventions. By course completion, candidates will be prepared to actively contribute to the management of children facing growth and developmental concerns.